Re: Spectrum's Synthetic Urine Patents

Dear Mr. Gile:

As a follow up to our call on October 29, 2021, Spectrum requests that:

1. Aim High send the remaining sample of XStream from Micro Quality Labs, Inc. to Element Labs so that Spectrum can conduct its own testing of the sample.
2. Aim High instruct Micro Quality Labs, Inc. to provide to Spectrum all of the data, notes, test results, and documents underlying the test results (similar to what Spectrum provided for its testing), including photographs of the product as received by the lab.
3. Aim High obtain the following from each of its suppliers of synthetic urine during the last six years:
 - (a) each distinct formula used and the date range when that formula was used (note: the formula sheets must show the amount of each ingredient; an MSDS is not sufficient); and
 - (b) an affidavit from the person most knowledgeable from each supplier attesting that (i) the formula information is complete and accurate, and (ii) the supplier never added isothiazoline or any of the claimed biocides to any synthetic urine solution and has no knowledge, information, or reason to believe that isothiazoline or any of the claimed biocides were present in any synthetic urine solution.

4. Aim High provide an affidavit from the person most knowledgeable attesting that Aim High (a) never added isothiazoline or any of the claimed biocides to any synthetic urine solution, and (b) has no knowledge, information, or reason to believe that isothiazoline or any of the claimed biocides were present in any synthetic urine solution.

Spectrum is willing to consider signing an NDA to keep any competitively-sensitive information “Attorneys’ Eyes Only.” Let me know if you can provide a draft NDA for Spectrum to consider.

During our call, I raised the possibility of Spectrum’s and Aim High’s business people speaking directly to see if they can work together on other ideas for potentially resolving this dispute. Please let me know if Aim High is interested in having such a discussion and, if so, please provide the name and contact information for the person that Spectrum should contact.

We ask that Aim High respond by November 26, 2021.

Sincerely,

Matthew J. Cavanagh
